MESSAGE FROM THE AUTHOR

It's finally been the [illegible] serialization. Before drawing the first chapter I was going to make a piercing in Shinobu's left ear only and in the final chapter I was thinking I would be mean to her and make her open a piercing in her right ear by her own hand! However I heard a rumor that this degrades eyesight so I abandoned the ideal. Eyes are very important to a manga author you see

● Introduction:

One day in Shibuya, Shinobu Aihara meets a gang member called Kyou. He's a discourteous jerk who suddenly says, "Become my woman." Without thinking, Shinobu replies to his obstinacy saying, "I have a boyfriend." Shinobu must then produce a boyfriend, so she asks her unrequited love, Hibiki-kun, to play the part, but...?

HEY, MISSY...

Hello

I m Kaho Miyasaka

With your help, we were able to release the second volume of this comic I'm very happy Thank You By the way, about "SCOUNDREL " Every one of the people who surround me said, "This work is just like you, Miyasaka " Even being told that, it didn't really strike home but now it seems like I've become addicted to drawing delinquents I definitely like to draw delinquent boys (And meet them)

So I was wondering, "Do I get that from pictures I've seen ?" but I've become aware since people have told me that, "Kyou is just like Miyasaka " Meaning in short that I m addicted because Kyou and I have matching personalities ! (Was I that kind of jerk?) Horrible revelation But I don t ridicule others as much as he does (Grin)

Actually, I was normal back then I'm not in a gang You would get the impression from a manga that the person writing it fits the image of the work but not everything is actual fact (A tentative excuse)

Well, I suppose in any work an author s own self will really come out in every episode to some degree

But just a little... A little Right!? AA

HEY, SHINOBU-CHAN, YOU STILL AIN'T GOTTEN THE BLOODY EARRING FROM KYOU?
HUH? THE BLOODY EAR-RING?

In "SCOUNDREL" this time, the pivotal story of the earring is developing, but about the stone called "royal blue moonstone," which appeared in the work.

I think many people are finding out for the first time that there is such a stone because of "SCOUNDREL." "Moonstone" brings a milky white image to mind, but it's available in many other colors, too. Royal blue moonstone is a deep, transparent blue, which is hardly ever seen in a moonstone, but when there is one, it's an incredibly beautiful blue.

In addition, there is a blue moonstone, but it's completely different from royal blue, having a blue hue faintly mingled with milky white and a cuter image. If I had to say why I chose royal blue moonstone, it's because it's rare, so I wanted to let people know about it. And since having one creates a high-class image, I thought it would suit the strong-willed and proud Shinobu.

When I bring out these kinds of props, I select ones which match the character's image. Compared to other moonstones, this royal blue moonstone is pretty pricey, but for those of you who are interested, please try searching for one.

By the way, Kyou's bloody earring is a fictional item. As for something that fit his image, nothing but blood came to mind...!

Now, as I explained in ②, I choose props which accent a character's image.

On top of creating the story, I'm doing an important duty. After it seems that Shinobu will be attacked by the other gang and is saved by Kyou, Shinobu hides away in a hotel, where she has the line, "...Ugh... His scent is still on me..." and this scent is his eau de toilet cologne. The one Kyou wears is Enrico Coveri!! ...is the image I always had, and when I was doing Kyou's entrance scene, I would constantly sniff it (smile)... and the image would expand into my drawing. Sexy man ♥ is what it smells like. If I hadn't thought about this cologne, Shinobu's line would never have been born.

Also, I use theme songs for every work (smile ♪). They're not actually songs that I compose myself ♪. When there are songs that I personally like, and songs that fit the images of the works, I listen to nothing but those while I draw the stories. Listening to the songs helps the story to slowly expand. (Everyone, when you know a song that fits a story's image, please tell me!)

While drawing "SCOUNDREL," I constantly listened to "Love Me" on Nanase Aikawa san's album, "Red" (It's cool! ♥).

Whenever I walk the streets or ride the train or even when I stare at the evening sky, I'm looking for situations which might fit the stories. I become the characters and wander the streets. Sometimes, I'll intentionally go out in the rain and things like that... The episodes in the stories grow from this, and lines come to me like... Bam! Bam! I must look suspicious to other people ♪.

I've been talking this whole time about what goes on behind the scenes, but somehow it all ended up being an incredible load of alphabet soup. Please skip over this if you're losing interest.

By the way, I doubt there's not even one person who hasn't realized this, but... For the flowers on the cover jacket and the magazine ad cut, as well as in the drawing, I studied the language of flowers and drew something which matches the characters' personalities.

This is not confined to "SCOUNDREL," and applies to my other works as well. In the beginning of "SCOUNDREL," there's a frame of Kyou where white lilies are used in the background. White lilies mean purity, so I tried intentionally using them for Kyou, whose image is the exact opposite of that.

The flowers used on the front cover of the short story recorded at the end "XXX Kiss Mark" are: tree peonies => wealth and peonies => shyness. Kumi seems like she has a high self-esteem but the truth is that she's also innocent in ways, and I tried to entrust that to the flowers.

(Knowing these things is interesting, isn't it?)

Now then, when I look at everyone's letters, I'm frequently asked, "Did you use anyone as a model for the characters?" but this time I didn't have a model for the primary or secondary characters. However, I was often told previously that my male characters look like Tomoya Nagase kun from TOKIO (their outward appearances...). I like boys who look pretty ♥, is what I think, but I've never actually tried to model a character after anyone.

I wonder how many have made a point of reading my manga because there are characters who look like Nagase kun... Aaah... I don't know what the impetus to read them is.

I've also been told by some of the readers that he looks like Takuya Kimura-san from SMAP o/r/z It's interesting to look at the various readers letters regarding the characters images. (And, additionally, what celebrities names came out.) I occasionally read a letter saying that a character looks like the reader's acquaintance and I enjoy reading those ♥ It makes me so happy when a photograph is included!

There actually is a model for the supporting character, Nakajima-kun, who appears in this chapter. I thought I ought to make him into the type...one of which is in every class...who's easy to be familiar with. On late night satellite television WOWOW, they were playing "Eko Eko Azaraku," starring Kimika Yoshino-chan, and after casually watching it, I thought that the image of the man playing her companion fit Nakajima-kun perfectly...so I used him as a model...and that decided Nakajima's appearance. But I have no idea what that actor's name is. I admit that I am. I didn't think to check the credits either.

Nakajima without his headband and 2nd municipal high school junior. Currently single. Nakajima-kun is surprisingly and unexpectedly quite popular & Even my assistants all say he's a good guy.

SPECIAL SKILLS Maybe cooking... I've lived on my own since 10th grade, so I just sort of got used to it. When it doesn't taste good, that jerk Hibiki is obnoxious about it. He always used to eat out, so now he makes me make him a box lunch.

Ugh ! I feel like I've turned into a housewife... (
